QUASH INDICTMENTS OF STEEL CORPORATION

Youngstown Judge Throws Out Charges That Steel
Heads Conspired to Fix Wages of Common
Laborer—Includes Gary In Decision.

Youngstown, O., March 28.—Ruling that labor was not a commodity and therefore did not fall under provisions of the Valentine anti-trust act, Common Pleas Judge W. G. Anderson today quashed the indictments against Judge Elbert H. Gary, the U. S. Steel Corporation and five other steel companies. Following recent Youngstown steel strike, Gary and the steel companies were indicted, charged with conspiracy to maintain prices of steel and fix wages of common laborers.

In sustaining the motion to quash, Judge Anderson characterized the indictments as "vague, indefinite and uncertain."

Prosecutor Henderson, who had charge of the grand jury investigation, refused to say whether further action against the steel companies is planned. It is believed, however, that no attempt to return new indictments will be made.

Gary and steel corporation were not included in motion to quash the charges, but Judge Anderson's ruling
